Google Analytics uses its cookies to control the interactions of the visitors. Cookies are used to memorize information such as, for instance, the hour of the current visit, if the visitor has already visited the site in the past and what site has directed him to the web page. The clients of Google Analytics may visualize a wide range of reports on the manner in which the visitors interact with their website, in order to be able to improve the website and the manner in which the visitors reach it. A different cookie is used for every website, and the visitors are not monitored on several sites."
